A new prenylated diphenyl ether (3) and two new prenylated bibenzyls (4, 5), along with ten known compounds, were isolated from the stems of Albizia hispida (Leguminosae). Their structures were established on the basis of extensive spectroscopic data analyses. In addition, the isolation of compound 3 and its neuroprotective effects against neurotoxicity induced by tert-butyl hydroperoxide were investigated in vitro. Compound 3 exhibited potent neuroprotective effects with an IC₅₀ of 12.78 μM against neurotoxicity induced by tert-butyl hydroperoxide.
The Creaky, Broken Machine There is an old story about a journeyman toolmaker, working on a crumbling, decrepit machine, whose friend says, "Take a look, the gears are worn out on this one." The toolmaker goes to a dark corner, where the machine is located and quietly whispers, "My friend is an idiot." Then he goes on with his work. There are other stories about machines that are near dead. This one was about a man who was forced to take a machine to the hospital because it was malfunctioning, and the machine was near dead. The mechanic was forced to spend a night with the machine, which leaked oil all over the floor. The next morning, the mechanic went home, and his wife asked him, "What did you do last night?" And he said, "I was at the hospital all night. There was a machine leaking oil, and it was near dead."
