A moment of chaos occurs when you get your first zombie.Q: How to "hide" elements in the DOM in HTML5? I am trying to replicate the effect of having a div hidden behind a translucent image (when the browser transitions), and then appearing over the top once the transition finishes, but in pure HTML5. The only way I have managed to get this is by using the visibility property of the , but this is not what I am looking for. I would like to be able to just have some CSS style that makes the element appear as if it is "behind" the image, and then change the CSS after a delay, to make it appear. I'm assuming I have to use CSS transitions and transitions that are animated. I am looking for a method that works in all modern browsers, not just the latest ones.
