Q: How to sort a dict based on the values of 2 keys I have a dict, and I would like to order it based on the values of 2 keys. For example: dict1 = { 'a': 1, 'b': 2, 'c': 3, 'd': 4, 'e': 5 } I would like to order the dictionary based on the value of the keys 'a' and 'b', but that when I order the dict based on the key 'a' if a is equal to 5, it should also put the key 'e' before the key 'a'. How can I do this? Thanks in advance!

A: from operator import itemgetter a = sorted(dict1, key=itemgetter(0), reverse=True) b = sorted(dict1, key=itemgetter(1), reverse=True) print(dict1[b[0]], dict1[a[0]]) Output: ('e', 5) ('a', 1)

Cross-reactivity was investigated by lectin blot analysis of glycoproteins separated by sodium dodecyl sulfate-
